What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files that are placed on your computer or device when you visit a website. Cookies set by ADInstruments are called first party cookies and cookies set by other organisations are called third party cookies. Third party cookies used on our website are mainly for understanding how the website performs, your interactions with our website, keeping our services secure and providing advertisements that are relevant to you.

The types of cookies we use

Strictly Necessary Cookies

These cookies are necessary for the website to function and cannot be switched off in our systems. They are usually only set in response to actions made by you which amount to a request for services, such as setting your privacy preferences, logging in or filling in forms. You can set your browser to block or alert you about these cookies, but some parts of the site will not then work. These cookies do not store any personally identifiable information.

About this policy

This policy explains how we use cookies and other similar technologies on our websites. It explains what cookies are and why we use them and this policy forms part of the website Terms of Use (available at www.adinstruments.com).

Sometimes we may use cookies and other tracking technologies described in this policy to collect personal information, or to collect information that becomes personal information when combined with other information. For more details about how we process personal information, please consult our Privacy Policy.

Other tracking technology

We may use other technologies that do not rely on cookies and are bespoke to our system to measure your activities in our application. These are not provided by a third party and this information is never shared and only used for the purposes of system operation, support and product improvements.

How to control cookies

Since we only use cookies essential for the functionality of our application, we don't have the ability to opt out of those first party cookies listed above. For features that load content from a third party, we provide controls within your user account to revoke consent to that third party content.

You can set or amend your web browser controls to accept or refuse cookies. If you choose to reject cookies, you may still use our website though your access to some functionality and areas of our website may be restricted. Please refer to help information relating to the browser you are using for more detailed instructions.

Updates to this policy

We may update this policy when we update the cookies we use or for other operational, legal or regulatory reasons. When we change our Cookies Policy we will publish the updated policy on our website. Therefore please check this policy regularly. As laws permit, all changes take place as soon as we publish them on our website.

This Cookies Policy was last updated on 13 June 2024.
